

COOKIE POLICY

www.fni.it and www.shop.fni.it

Dear User,

Forniture Nautiche S.r.l. a socio unico, in its capacity as Data Controller, wish to provide you, in a clear and transparent manner, the information about cookie used by www.fni.it and www.shop.fni.it (hereinafter also referred to as "websites") and describes the reasons and conditions of their use.

What is a cookie and what is its purpose

Cookies are small text strings that the website sends to the User's terminal (usually the browser), where they are stored and then sent back to the same website the next time the User visits (so-called first-party cookies). It is, therefore, a tool that assists the Data Controller in providing the service according to the different purposes pursued. Some of these purposes may also require the User's consent; this consent may be revoked freely at any time by following the instructions contained in this document. During navigation on the site, the User may also receive cookies on his terminal that are sent from different websites (so-called third party cookies) and this happens because the website visited may contain images, maps, links to other web pages and other elements that reside on servers other than that on which the page requested is located. The responsibility and management of first party cookies is assumed directly by the Controller, while that of third-party cookies fall on the respective owners.

Types of cookies

Cookies may have a limited duration of a single browsing session (so-called session cookies) and be automatically deactivated when the browser is closed, or they may have a predetermined expiry date (so-called permanent cookies) and remain active until that time, thus continuing to collect information during the different browsing sessions. In order to provide a complete description of these devices, it is necessary to make further distinctions based on their technical characteristics. In fact, cookie are used for various functions: some are necessary to allow the User to browse the website and take advantage of its functions (technical cookies); others are used to obtain statistical information, whether aggregated or not, on the number of Users accessing the site and on how the site is used (so-called analytic cookies); others are used to track the profile of the consumer and allow the same to display advertising consistent with the tastes and consumption habits of the User (so-called profiling cookies).

Which cookies are used and for what purposes

The following types of cookies are currently used on these sites:

- technical cookies, used to enable the safe and efficient operation and exploration of the site, save the session and perform other activities strictly necessary for the operation of the site, to save preferences and optimize the user's browsing experience;
- third party cookies and analytics, used to collect information in aggregate form on navigation to optimize it (in this case, the Controller is required to provide the updated link to third party policy).

More specifically, websites use the following cookies:

- Google Analytics

Cookies analytics are used on websites to collect statistical information, aggregated or not, on the number of users accessing and how they visit the websites. The analytics cookies on these websites are third party cookies, as they are not directly installed or transmitted by us but by third parties.

In particular, Users are informed that the web analysis service that releases cookies used by the Controller is "Google Analytics", described below. Google Analytics is a web analysis service provided by Google, Inc. ("Google") that uses cookies, which are stored on the User's computer to enable the website visited to analyse how Users use it. The information generated by the cookie about your use of the website (including your IP address) will be transmitted to Google, which will use this information for the purpose of evaluating your use of the website, compiling reports on website activity for website operators and providing other services relating to website activity and internet usage. Google may also transfer this information to third parties where required to do so by law, or where such third parties process the information on Google's behalf. Google will not associate your IP address with any other data held by Google. The User may, at any time, refuse the use of cookies by selecting the appropriate setting on their browser.

To consult the privacy policy of the Google company regarding the Google Analytics service, as well as to express your consent to the use of these cookies, please refer to <http://www.google.com/intl/en/analytics/privacyoverview.html>

How to manage cookies

During the first visit to the websites, the User can accept all cookies by clicking on the "ACCEPT" button or on the close button in the banner, or on any element of the web page outside the banner itself.

Most browsers automatically accept cookies, but the users can usually change own settings to disable this function. The User can block all types of cookies or agree to receive only some and disable the others. The sections "Options" or "Preferences" in the menu of the browser allows to avoid receiving cookies and other user tracking technologies and to obtain notification from the browser of the activation of these technologies.

It is possible to decide whether to accept cookies or not by modifying browser's secure settings at the following links:

User rights

The User may at any time exercise their rights in compliance with Art. 15 et seq. of GDPR, in particular, obtain confirmation of the existence of such data and confirmation that they are being processed or not, know their content and origin, verify their accuracy or request their integration, updating or rectification. In addition, the Users may request and obtain the portability of data, the removal, transformation into anonymous form, the restriction of the processing or blocking of data processed in violation of the law, and oppose in any case, for legitimate reasons, to their processing. In any case it is possible to lodge a complaint with the Italian Privacy Authority.

Requests can be sent to the Data Controller at the email address privacy@fni.it
